Hello, my dear friend Hollie,

In my opinion health - is the most important thing that person has in this world. It's very easy to lose it, but we can't return it anymore. Therefore, people should care about themselves and their loved ones. I feel sorry for those unhealthy young teens and adults in your country. Although they don't work to improve body and mindset. Going to gym, sleeping enough and even doing simple exercises will make you feel much better than before. My family keeps a healthy life style from the beginning. In the morning we stay up early also doing exercises. When the weekends start, jogging - running or walking through the streets is our daily routine. Some yoga lessons help us to relax after stressful day. My cousins and I love fast-food, but having to gain weight turns our priorities to eat home-made food. Although parents allow us to go McDonalds, KFC etc. Mostly I sleep for eight hours, better option for me is ten hours. In conclusion the only chance for living a life that you deserve is keeping healthy lifestyle informing people. That is the best attempt to improve our world.

No way days. Teenagers sleep not enough, that's why they often feel headaches, laziness and so on. Making information about health issues might let them understand that life gives us opportunities so we shouldn't waste it and do everything to make our life enjoyable.
