"What steps can ordinary people take to help to protect wildlife in my country?"
The twenty first century is the century of the most essential scientific innovations in all spheres, but people don't notice the fact that their activity damages wildlife. In my essay, I would like to consider the question: "What steps can ordinary people take to help to protect wildlife in my country?"

If you are concerned about protecting wildlife, the easiest method to start is to not litter. You will have to work among the tiny territories of your country cleaning them pretty thoroughly, also it's significant to pick up cans, bottles and garbage left by others. The reason is that small animals can be easily trapped and damaged, making them easy prey for different predators, or condemning them to slow death - and of course, when rubbish piles accumulate beyond human subjects, the result is: lots of animal habitat.

You can also join a wildlife protection organisations. Most of these organizations are interested in helping animals, that's why you'll be able to do something there, having heavy hands to maintain a normal level of existing animals in our environment.

Thus, I have considered the question of how an ordinary inhabitant of our country can help to increase the life conditions of our "small brothers".
