In my opinion now teens waste their time nice. They have a lot of courses to develop mind or to be healthy, like a sport. Also, we have extra lessons after schools, but there are in schools there are we can make a homework or play board games and so on. However, not at all young people waste their time with a good way. Because most of them just sit at home and play video games. Of course, it's not bad, but there are more problems, like communication. For example in other section you could be a friends with a lot of people. If the way most of them have a FOMO. You're at home, you can't go out because you're busy. But you can't stop checking your phone. About 25% of teens say that they get this feeling.

For conclusion, In my opinion, It's your life and only you decide how to waste your time.
